

Birds of Someshwara Wildlife Sanctuary (and Agumbe)

19 March 1995 to 24 March 1995

by L. Shyamal and D. Rajkumar

Someshwara Wildlife Sanctuary lies to the West of Agumbe at the base of the Agumbe Ghat in the Western Ghats of Karnataka. Agumbe once held a record for the highest precipitation in Karnataka. Much of this is due to some form of adiabatic cooling of the sea breeze and its condensation on the vegetation at the edge of the Ghats. The vegetation of this area is under threat and much of it is already gone. The villages of Hebri and Sitanadi border it and the river Sitanadi passes through it. This list of birds was made during a short stay in the Someshwara area and a brief visit to Agumbe. The naming of the birds is as in Salim Ali and S.D. Ripley. Most of the birding at Agumbe was done along the wooded path to the Onake Abbi falls, where we also got to see a Leopard at close quarters. On a clear day one can see the Arabian sea from the road leading down Agumbe. The winding roads may also yield a sight of the rare Lion-tailed Macaques (Macaca silenus).
